J.M.H.S. ALMA MATER

Beyond the city's noise and clamor,
Serene beneath the heaven's gold,
Clear in the radiant morning sunlight,
Our Alma Mater we behold.

To us, her loyal sons and daughters,
A glorious task it now shall be,
To write in blazing crimson letters,
Monroe's fair history.

SENIOR CLASS SONG

There's no Seniors like our Seniors
The great class of Monroe.
We're the super Class of '87!
We're the ones who make our school
so proud.
When you search from earth right up
through heaven,
In '87—we'll shout it loud!

There's no Seniors like our Seniors
So let's say it again . . .
We will fly to glory in the coming years,
We'll earn great honors and earn your
cheers,
But the day we graduate, we'll bring on
tears,
As we finally go— The great class
from Monroe!

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Since the beginning of time, man has been fascinated with the heavens. Whether it was the ancient Greek astronomers that wondered about the movement of the stars in the sky or the poets who were inspired by it, man's eyes have always searched skyward. Why has this been so? The human mind conceives of a supreme being dwelling on high. Heaven is synonymous with good and holy things. It is God's home, the place where man rejoins his maker after death as a reward for a good life.

How do these traditional views of moving up affect you? You have reached a new plateau, ascended, if you will, to a higher plain. The ceremony marking your completion of high school is called "commencement". In fact, it is a new beginning where you will be expected to climb to a higher station in life. As you continue to climb and achieve, keep your eyes on the stars. Do not settle for second best. Instead, strive for excellence and rise to the challenges that the world offers you, giving nothing but your best. Remember the words of the poet Robert Browning who said: "A man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?"

Best Wishes,

Jack Valerio

The days spent at Monroe can be compared to those of a daytime soap opera, each one different, each one possessing something the day before did not have.

Thinking back now, we wish we could change all the mistakes that we've made. All the chances we should have taken and should not have taken, are now just another entry in our diaries; something to look back on in years to come.

Now, it's time to look toward our future. The decision-making process is not one that comes without maturity. So all the mistakes we made here will enable us to do what is right in our futures.

The days spent here have been a learning experience in more ways than one. They will not soon be forgotten by any of us. I would truly like to express my thanks to the staff of James Monroe High School and, to the Class of 1987. May the enrichment of your lives go beyond the farthest star!

Lady Carol Johnson

Being at Monroe has been a very busy time for us, and very exciting for me personally. I found myself involved in many different activities. I've really enjoyed these years. I've learned to love Monroe and it has taught me so much. My hat goes off to the great teaching staff who really show personal concern to all the students and who do their best to guide us in the right direction.

Before we leave Monroe and say goodbye, we should thank all of those who have helped us along the road to knowledge and triumphs. We should look back on all the friends we've made and the activities in which we've participated.

As we go ahead in life, we must not forget James Monroe High School. May its halls stand forever and its light burn even brighter in the future. May it linger in our memories always.

Viccki McPhatter

We have tried to make all of you, our Seniors, the stars of this yearbook. Our production was made possible by all the teachers who allowed us to share their classrooms. We had the cooperation of coaches and advisors who welcomed us to their events. We were busy seeing you at activities all year long, planned by Tom Porton and Dolores Daly. Mr. Valerio was always there, giving us his support. We are glad to have been able to use the pages of this yearbook as the stage for your performances. Showing your smiles made us happy. May each of you continue to be the stars in many more of life's shows.

Sanford Hochberg & the Monrovia Staff

may all your dreams
